King County's Licensing Office at the Regional Justice Center updating hours to better accommodate public

Accessing King County services will soon be even easier for residents of South King County. In September, King County's Licensing Office at the Regional Justice Center will be changing its hours to better accommodate families and working professionals.

"The hours were changed to help our clients better access our facilities," said Jim Buck, interim director of King County Records, Elections and Licensing Services. "The new hours will make it easier for customers to come in at the end of the day, after work or school."

Currently located at the Regional Justice Center (RJC) in Kent at 401 4th Ave North, the King County Licensing Office will change its hours on Tuesday, September 5, 2006. New hours of operation will be Monday through Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Fridays from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

King County offers a variety of services to its residents at its six satellite offices, known as Community Service Centers, with convenient locations and special hours to serve as many residents as possible.

The Regional Justice Center Licensing Office in Kent will continue to provide the following services:

- Marriage and pet licensing
- U.S. passport application (passport intakes stop 15 minutes prior to closing)
- Property tax payment
- Voter registration
- King County job listings and applications
- General County services

The King County Licensing Office opened its doors in 1997, along with the Regional Justice Center, and has been serving residents of South King County ever since.
